Marine Modelling From Building to Racing

Something for Everyone in Marine Modelling

Metro Marine Modellers has provided a place for enthusiasts since 1958 to share their model boat hobby, whether they like to build detailed static replicas of ships, operate scale models on the water or participate in a racing program for model sailboats.

MMM is the oldest model boat club in Ontario, considered by many to be one of the finest in the country. It is devoted to promote designing, building, racing and preserving all types and sizes of model ships, boats and craft.

Should you be interested in any aspect of the model boat hobby, we invite you to visit our web page, our pond or come to one of our monthly meetings.

*Metro Marine is a proud member of the Great Lakes Model Boat Association and is
Club # 5 in the American Model Yacht
Association*

Sail Division

The Toronto Metro Marine Modellers Sail Division invites you to come and visit us on the water. We look forward to handing you a transmitter and showing you how much fun it is to sail or race by radio control.

The sailors race Tuesday evenings and most Sundays from April until October for racing, and other days as scheduled. You may sail for fun at our two sailing locations (see maps) any day of the week. While other boats are always welcome, the classes of boats that our club sails competitively are:

- Soling One Meter
- International One Meter
- Dragon Force 65 (most popular)
- Victoria
- Dragon Flight 95

“Class” means that every boat meets the same measurement specifications as the other boats in the class. This ensures equality during racing competition. Our schedule of events and more information on our sail group can be found on the MMM website or contact our Sail Captain at: sailcaptain@metromarine.org

General Club Meetings

Our general meetings are generally held twice a year at:

Trace Manes Community Center
110 Rumsey Road
Toronto, ON
M4G 1P2

Check the club calendar for specific dates, times and locations.

Scale Division

You've built her, fitted her out... an exact scale model of your favorite ship! Be it super tanker or tug boat, battle cruiser or cabin cruiser, with radio control at your command you ring on "Slow Ahead". She eases away from the dock and you are underway.

Building a model of a ship that you have seen, actually sailed in or read about can provide many hours of fun and enjoyment. To actually operate the vessel brings the hobby to full life.

The Scale Division of Metro Marine Modellers offers you the opportunity to meet modellers, always eager to help you in this challenging and fascinating hobby. You will also be able to share in the many group activities that are enjoyed by other boat builders. Additions to our web site keep you in touch with latest developments and provide many helpful tips on building and running your new craft.

Static Division

If you just love building boats (without getting your hull wet), then this is for you. There's nothing quite so fascinating as a beautifully detailed model of a ship on display. You'll be able to exhibit your handiwork, whether it be a windjammer, a warship, etc. at our many shows and demonstrations.

Model shipbuilding is one of the few hobbies today that is truly affordable. That's because it can be as simple or complex as you wish to make it. This hobby can be enjoyed by all age groups. There are literally as many different types and sizes of model boats as there are full size ones.

Newcomers to the hobby usually start by building from a kit. Local hobby shops carry many different types of kits, all include the necessary parts, materials and instructions to show you just how to assemble and finish your model. Only a few basic tools are needed for the actual building, so it is really not an expensive hobby. Once you have mastered building models from kits and feel you want to get deeper into the hobby, you can scratch build models where you make all of the parts yourself and build the model using them.
